

Inconsistencies of Humanism

by Wayne Goff

Take a look at Humanist Manifesto I (1933) and read: "First: Religious humanists regard the universe as self-existing and not created." Today, modern humanists deny that their philosophy is religion. That is because humanists are committed to the principle of separation of church and state, and thus would rule themselves out of the very classrooms wherein they indoctrinate others!

In "Affirmations of Humanism: A Statement of Principles" drafted by Paul Kurtz, we read "We are committed to the application of reason and science to the understanding of the universe and to the solving of human problems." But they refuse to accept the rational, factual evidence in the universe of creation!

In the same Affirmation, we read again, "We are concerned with securing justice and fairness in society and with eliminating discrimination and intolerance." But these same humanists are bent on destroying Christianity, objective moral standards of Judeo-Christian teaching, while promoting their own agenda of immorality, sexual promiscuity, and various perversions! They are extremely discriminatory and intolerant!

Once more, the draft by Paul Kurtz proclaims: "We believe in the cultivation of moral excellence." But they have no single standard of what moral excellence is, nor do they have a logical reason for it!

Humanists believe that they are the center of their own world, that they have the knowledge, wisdom and power to direct their own paths, and yet if you read the evolution of thought evident in Humanist Manifesto I (1933), Humanist Manifesto II (1973), and "Affirmations of Humanism" (1999), you will quickly see that their world is an ever-changing mirage of hope and faith! Oh, inconsistency, thou art a jewel!!

"Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever" (Heb. 13:8, KJV)! Know what you believe and why you believe it!

311001